

Stress

What is stress?

Here are the thoughts of some people who are experiencing stress.

"I just don't get a task finished any more before I move on to the next thing. I keep forgetting where I'm up to, I have 20 things on the go at once and I'm not getting anywhere with any of them"

"I keep meaning to get a little time for myself but I never manage to. Someone always asks me to help out and I never have the heart to say no, but I end up feeling really tired and irritable ..."

"It just seems to be one crisis after the next in my life. I've got a constant headache and stomach problems, I keep expecting something else to go wrong, I'm at the end of my tether ..."

Stress is the word that many people use when they are describing how the demands of their life seem to be becoming too great for them to cope with. This ability to cope varies from person to person and what one person finds stressful may not be a problem for another. Whilst many of us suffer with stress at times in our day to day lives, long term stress is known to be bad for our health and many of us would like to find ways to gain some control over it.

How can this leaflet help me?

This leaflet will tell you more about stress, it will help you to see whether stress is a problem for you. It makes simple suggestions about how to overcome stress and what other help may be available.

What are the signs of stress?

The signs of stress vary from person to person but here are some of the most common ones. Do you recognise any of them in yourself?

Physical signs (please tick if appropriate)

- Headaches
- Muscle tension or pain
- Stomach problems
- Sweating
- Feeling dizzy
- Bowel or bladder problems
- Breathlessness or palpitations
- Dry mouth
- Tingling in body
- Sexual problems

Emotions

- Feeling irritable
- Feeling anxious or tense
- Feeling in low mood
- Feeling of apathy
- Feeling low in self esteem

Effects on what you do

- Temper outbursts
- Drinking or smoking too much
- Changes in eating habits
- Withdrawing from usual activities
- Becoming unreasonable
- Being forgetful or clumsy
- Rushing around

If you have some of these signs it may be you are experiencing stress. These are some of the short term signs but long term health risks from stress are serious and include heart disease, high blood pressure, severe depression, stroke, migraine, severe anxiety, asthma, low resistance to infection, bowel problems, stomach problems especially ulcers, fatigue and sleep problems.

Can life events cause stress?

Some things that happen in your life can be stressful particularly life changes. If you have had one or more of the following life events occurring over the last year you will probably be more likely to be stressed and should take care to avoid further stressors, and try to take 'extra care' of yourself.

(Please tick if appropriate)

- Death of partner
- Divorce or relationship breakdown
- Jail term
- Death of close family member
- Getting married
- Loss of employment
- Health problems
- Pregnancy
- New employment
- High financial commitments
- Serious debts
- Major changes at work
- Partner stops or begins work
- Death of close friend
- Change in living conditions
- Disagreement with friends
- Problems at work, e.g. (lack of job security, several jobs, no satisfaction at work)
- Change in leisure activities
- Change in church/spiritual habits
- Minor legal problems
- Problems with neighbours/noise
- Family gatherings for holidays/Christmas

Is there a type of person who is more likely to experience stress?

Studies have shown that some people are more likely to experience stress than others. These people are known as 'type A' personalities. They tend to be more competitive and impatient and have tight time schedules compared to 'type B' personalities who are more relaxed and 'laid back' in their style. If you would like to know which type you are ticking the following boxes may help you to decide:

Type A

- Must get things finished
- Never late for appointments
- Competitive
- Can't listen to conversations interrupt, finish sentences for others
- Always in a hurry Don't like to wait
- Very busy at full speed
- Trying to do more than one thing at a time
- Want everything perfect
- Pressurised speech
- Do everything fast
- Hold feelings in
- Not satisfied with work/life Few social activities/interests
- If working will often take work home

Type B

- Don't mind leaving things unfinished for a while
- Calm and unhurried about appointments
- Not competitive
- Can listen and let the other person finish speaking
- Never in a hurry even when busy
- Can wait calmly
- Easy going
- Take one thing at a time
- Don't mind things not quite perfect
- Slow and deliberate speech Do things slowly
- Express feelings
- Quite satisfied with work/life Many social activities/interests
- If in employment limit time working to work hours

If most of your ticks are on the A side then you will be more prone to stress, if both As and Bs then you are a little prone to stress, if mainly Bs then you are less likely to suffer from stress! Those people who are more prone to stress may have to try harder to use some of the stress management approaches suggested here to tackle their natural tendency to stress.

How can I help myself to cope with stress?

Studies have told us that the first step in tackling stress is to become aware that it is a problem for you. The next stage is to make a plan to take control of the causes and effects of stress. Here are some practical ways to take control of stress.

Holiday - try to plan at least one each year with a change in activities and surrounding.

Open up - if your relationship is part of the problem. Communication is very important.

Work - is that the problem? What are your options? Could you retrain? What aspects are stressful? Could you delegate? Could you get more support?

Try to concentrate on the present. Don't dwell on the past or future worries.

Own up to yourself that you are feeling stressed - half the battle is admitting it!

Be realistic about what you can achieve. Don't take too much on.

Eat a balanced diet. Eat slowly and sit down, allowing at least half an hour for each meal.

Action plans - try to write down the problems in your life that may be causing stress, and as many possible solutions as you can. Make a plan to deal with each problem.

Time management - plan your time, doing one thing at a time and building in breaks. Don't make too many changes at once in your life.

Set priorities - if you could only do one thing, what would it be?

Talk things over with a friend or family member or someone else you can trust and share your feelings with.

Relaxation or leisure time each day is important. Try new ways to relax such as aromatherapy, reflexology or yoga. Relaxation exercises are described more fully below.

Exercise regularly - at least 20 minutes two or three times a week. This is excellent for stress control. Walking is good - appreciate the countryside.

Say no and don't feel guilty.

Seek professional help if you have tried these things and still your stress is a problem.

Can I learn to be more relaxed?

Relaxation is a skill like any other which needs to be learned and takes time. The following exercise teaches deep muscle relaxation, and many people find it very helpful in reducing overall levels of tension.

Deep muscle relaxation - It is helpful to read the instructions first and eventually to learn them by heart. Start by selecting a quiet, warm, comfortable place where you won't be disturbed. Choose a time of day when you feel most relaxed to begin, then lie down and get comfortable. Close your eyes and concentrate on your breathing for a few minutes, breathing slowly and calmly - in-two-three and out-two-three. Say the word "calm" or "relax" to yourself as you breathe out. The relaxation exercise takes you through different muscle groups, teaching you firstly to tense, then relax. You should breathe in when tensing and breathe out when you relax.

Start with your hands. Clench one fist tightly, and think about the tension this produces in the muscles of your hand and forearm.

Study the tension for a few seconds then relax your hand. Notice the difference between the tension and the relaxation. You might feel a slight tingling, this is the relaxation beginning to develop.

Do the same with the other hand.

Each time you relax a group of muscles think how they feel when they are relaxed. Don't try to relax but just let go of the tension. Allow your muscles to relax as much as you can. Think about the difference in the way they feel when they are relaxed and when they're tense. Now do the same for the other muscles of your body. Each time tense them for a few seconds and then relax. Study the way they feel and then let go of the tension in them.

It is useful to stick to the same order as you work through the muscle groups:

Hands - clench fists, then relax.

Arms - bend your elbows and tense your arms. Feel the tension especially in your upper arms. Remember, do this for a few seconds and then relax.

Neck - press your head back and roll it from side to side slowly. Feel how the tension moves. Then bring your head forward into a comfortable position.

Face - there are several muscles here, but it is enough to think about your forehead and jaw, First lower your eyebrows in a frown. Relax your forehead. You can also raise your eyebrows, and then relax. Now, clench your jaw, notice the difference when you relax.

Shoulders - shrug your shoulders up - then relax them.

Chest - take a deep breath, hold it in for a few seconds, notice the tension, then relax. Let your breathing return to normal.

Stomach - tense your stomach muscles as tightly as you can and relax.

Buttocks - squeeze your buttocks together and relax.

Legs - straighten your legs and bend your feet towards your face then relax.

You may find it helpful to get a friend to read the instructions to you. Don't try too hard, just let it happen.

To make best use of relaxation you need to:

- Practise daily.
- Start to use relaxation in everyday situations.
- Learn to relax without having to tense your muscles first.
- Use parts of relaxation to help in difficult situations, e.g. breathing slowly.
- Develop a more relaxed lifestyle.
- Practise in public situations (on bus, in queue etc).

What further help is available?

Sometimes a good source of help is to talk to family or close friends, but there are also other ways you may get help.

Your family doctor is probably the best person to discuss your difficulties with in the first instance. This is particularly important if your problem is not going away or is getting worse.

You may be offered counselling or if your problem seems to be becoming more severe you may be referred to a mental health worker.

Newcastle, North Tyneside and Northumberland Mental Health Trust will be able to provide relaxation tapes if you would like to improve this skill further. You may want to enrol in a local yoga or aromatherapy course. Your local library will have information on courses.

If you feel your stress problem may now be a more serious anxiety or depression, talk to your family doctor. Try to get help sooner rather than later. Depression is easily treated if caught early.

There are also many books available on coping with stress; these can be brought or could be borrowed from your local library. The following people are useful contacts:

- Your practice nurse or health visitor, who is based at your GP practice.
- Your local Community Health Council. You will find the address and phone number in the phone book.

The following organisations and help lines may also be useful:

Association for Post Natal Illness - for women who are experiencing depression following the birth of their baby - 145 Dawes Road, London, SW6 7EB. Tel: 0207 3860868.

CALM (Campaign Against Living Miserably): a helpline offering confidential counselling, advice and information specifically aimed at young men, although it will accept calls from anyone. Tel: 0800 585858

Community Law Centre – provides free legal advice. Tel: 01228 515129.

Council for Agriculture and Rural Life – support for those in rural areas. Tel: 016974 73405.

Cruse North Cumbria - help for bereaved people and those caring for bereaved people. Tel: 07071 780761

Cumbria Stress Information Network – information and advice, particularly for those living in rural areas. c/o Voluntary Action Cumbria, Redhills, Penrith Tel: 01768 862171.

East Cumbria Family Support Association – practical help and befriending for families with young children
8 Mostyn Hall, Friargate, Penrith, Cumbria CA11 7XR
Tel: 01768 242145
Morton Park Family Centre, Wigton Road, Carlisle CA2 6JP
Tel: 01228 707085

Mind

12 High Street, Workington	Tel: 01900 66518
3 Chatsworth Square, Carlisle	Tel: 01228 543111
38 Great Dockray, Penrith	Tel: 01768 899002.

National Debt Line. Help for anyone in debt or concerned they may fall into debt. Tel: 0808 8084000

Outreach Cumbria – information, advice and social support for gay men, lesbians and bisexuals :
Tel: 01228 603075

Royal Agricultural Benevolent Association – financial assistance for farming families.

Tel: 01865 727888

Rural Stress Information Network: addresses the particular needs of people in rural areas experiencing stress.
Tel: 024 7641 2916

Samaritans. Confidential support for anyone in a crisis.

Link line (local rate). 0345-909090.

Carlisle: 01228 544444

Whitehaven: 01946 694266

Some useful books to buy or borrow from your local library:

- Burns, D 1980. Feeling good: the new mood therapy. New American Library, New York.
- Cooper, C. 1981. The stress check. Prentice Hall.
- Charlesworth, E. 1986. Stress Management: A comprehensive guide to your well-being. Corgi.
- Greenberger, D and Padesky, C. 1995. Mind over Mood, Guilford.
- Gutmann, J. 1998. The Stress Workbook. Sheldon.

